

• CONTENTS •

• Before Reading 6 •

• Fireball's Heart 9 •

• After Reading 26 •

• •

Before Reading

Meet Duane

Hello. I'm Duane and I'm 13.
I'm a Native American.

I come from the Lakota tribe. I've got an American name.

But I've also got a Native American name.

It's Fast Wind. Can you guess why?

Easy! Because I love running fast like the wind!

- 1 Now you make your Native American name.
Choose the words from the two columns below.

| | |
|--------|---------|
| Fast | Water |
| Slow | Horse |
| Big | Sky |
| Small | Moon |
| Strong | Sun |
| Wise | Wind |
| Deep | Buffalo |
| Quiet | Foot |
| Black | Owl |
| White | Smile |

My Native American name is because

- 2  Now find one for your friend. Share your new names.

3 This story is a Native American legend.
What is a legend? Tick (✓) the correct answer.

- a A legend is a story from another country.
- b A legend is an old and popular story.
- c A legend is a comic story.

4 Match the characters from the story with the descriptions.

- 1 I'm Chief Wise Owl. I've got an owl headdress. How many feathers have I got?
- 2 I'm Dark Eyes. I'm a young Indian boy. I love horses. Do you?
- 3 I'm Blue Feather. I'm a young Indian girl. I've got long dark hair. What are you like?
- 4 I'm Chief Strong Buffalo. I'm very proud of my buffalo headdress. Do you like it?

5 Now answer the questions in Exercise 4 above.

 It's a quiet evening in the prairie. Chief Strong Buffalo and Chief Wise Owl are sitting round a fire. 'My people are great hunters'. They can find fish in the river and animals in the woods and on the prairie. They speak the language of the trees and the flowers. And they know the names of all the stars,' says Chief Strong Buffalo.

For a long time, the two men don't speak. Chief Wise Owl looks up at the sky. He can see the stars and the moon and the silver clouds. He can feel the wind on his face. He can hear the distant cry of a coyote. Then he looks into Strong Buffalo's eyes for a long time. 'My people,' Wise Owl says, 'always tell the truth'.

GLOSSARY

- coyote: animal like a wolf, only smaller
- distant: far
- hunters: people who catch animals for food
- prairie: large grassy area (in the US)

‘Ha! Ha! Ha! Your people always tell the truth? Do you really think so, Wise Owl? Do you think that they never tell lies?’ laughs Strong Buffalo. Wise Owl is quiet. Again he looks up at the sky. Then he looks at a tree on the other side of the river. ‘Yes, I think so. Do you see that young man over there,’ he says. ‘His name is Dark Eyes. He looks after my horses. He always tells the truth! My people tell the truth – all the time! Like Dark Eyes!’

GLOSSARY

- lies: things that are false, not true

Dark Eyes does not know that Strong Buffalo and Wise Owl are talking about him. He is gathering wood for a fire. When he is ready, he lights the fire. He sits down by the fire and warms his hands and feet and looks at Chief Wise Owl's horses. One of the horses is tall and black. His name is Fireball and he is very fast. Fireball is the best horse on the prairie. Dark Eyes likes Fireball a lot. Fireball is Wise Owl's favourite horse.

- gathering: collecting; getting together

After Reading

Wordsearch

- 1 Find 16 words from the book in the wordsearch box. You can only use each letter once.

- 2 The remaining letters in the wordsearch spell the name of a traditional Native American symbol. Write it below, then look for it in the story.

It's a _____